PRICE: TELL MY KIDS SANTA ISN'T REAL

Freshman Invites Girlfriend to Dinner with LAUNCH Family

Local freshman James Harding was nervous on Tuesday evening; his girlfriend, Tanya Reed, would be meeting his LAUNCH family for the first time.

"It's a big step for us going forward," Harding admitted. "But I want to share that piece of my life with her." The couple discussed the decision several days in advance, with James broaching the topic over Ibbey's brunch. "I feel like there's a lot we haven't done together yet; WayCrow formal, WUFC, Home Plate. But I think this needs to happen first."

Reed has already visited James at home on several occasions, though interactions with family members have been few. "Their apartment seems to have, like, rotating themes? One time it was Under the Sea, but it's ranged from Outer Space to Jungle."

Harding warned his SO that a LAUNCHie is particularly dependent on the approval of his Pre-O father. "Mike is an understanding guy, but he also stresses service and self-governance. You're gonna have to make that readily apparent." In general, Harding said, his LAUNCH lineage values performance; the family presented NSYNC's Bye Bye Bye at the August community talent show.

Reed agreed to take the leap, though on the condition of reciprocity. "Next week we're getting lunch with my SOAR leaders. They're a bit more deliberate, plan-oriented people but I think they'll warm to James pretty quickly."

"I was especially nervous about meeting his pledge parents," Reed admits. "I really wanted to make the right first impression."

This One Simple College Hack Will Change Your Life!

College life can be stressful as heck. You need to get ahead every way you can. Luckily, we've got you covered. This one, simple life hack will revolutionize the way you study for tests. We can guarantee results!

Okay, buckaroo, here's what you do first: log in to WebStac. Have you done that, yet? Just enter your WashU Key. Fuck, you forgot it? Jesus Christ, dude, how hard is it to remember the one password you use for everything? Whatever, it's fine. Just click on "Forgot Password" option. Now go to your email — there you go, buddy! — and reset your WashU key.

Now you're really feeling it!

Does it work now? You're logged into WebStac? Okay, cool. I always believed in you! Now we can move on.

Alrighty, pal. Once logged into WebStac, hold your mouse over "Courses & Registration." Click on "Class Schedule."

Well done, friend! Okay, sir or madam, do you see those buildings and room numbers that are listed? Yeah — right there! Go to those buildings and those room numbers at the corresponding times. They will literally give you all the answers to your tests, and you can ask your professors all the questions you want. Just be sure to write everything down, and take a glance at your handy-dandy cheat-sheet right before the test.

You'll never feel overwhelmed again. Just sit back and watch the A's roll in. College achieved! Go get 'em, champ!

Let's get hackalicious!

Sexy Singles Near You Are at Risk of Losing Net Neutrality!

Local sluts are at risk of becoming victims of the FCC's net neutrality repeal plan. Service providers seeking to limit freedom of expression on the Internet may get their way this week, when the FCC hopes to repeal its net neutrality rules by party-line vote and compromise the intentions of dozens of super hot chicks in your area. Chad, 19, is looking for a fun night with YOU, but also an Internet free of corporations controlling what does and doesn't get seen. "If the FCC's net neutrality repeal plan goes through, how will I find hot singles to make sweet love to all night long?" says Natasha, 22. "After all, what else is the Internet for?*"

Santa to Bring Coal to Naughty Miners

In the giving spirit of the holiday season, we ask that all naughty boys and girls contribute to the cause by donating their own coal to Sherwood and his team this year.

A coal mine in eastern Wyoming has found a holiday-themed solution to get out of work once and for all. On December 6th, mine worker Gary Sherwood realized that by acting up on the job he would be obliging Santa Claus to bring him coal for the holidays. "According to Christmas lore, Santa brings coal to all the naughty boys and girls. So as long as I don't work hard, I'll find this month's coal quota in my stocking on December 25th!"

Sherwood's realization quickly spread to his coworkers, who have all jumped on board. Miners have been reported spitting in each other's faces, taking longer lunch breaks, and using company money for this year's Yankee Swap gifts. The miners are sure their antics have placed them on Santa's naughty list. Santa Claus has not yet responded to confirm their claims or even the nature of his existence. At press time, the naughty miners were patiently waiting for Christmas morning as the mine faced a steep economic downturn.

Your December Horoscope is Here!

We here at WUnderground pride ourselves on being attuned to the planetary vibrations. This month, we've got dirt on all of you. Caution: spoilers ahead!

Aries (March 21-April 19)

Did you invest in Bitcoin recently? No? Okay then, never mind, you're good.

Taurus (April 20-May 20)

Fuck you, Taurus. Always acting like it's all okay when we both know you've been all over Applebee's Happy Hour with Jessica from work even though I explicitly called dibs.

Gemini (May 21-June 20)

You have Hep-C. I know, right?!

Cancer (June 21-July 22)

YOU HAVE A WON TWO CRUISE FOR THREE PLEASE DIAL 1-800-522-4343 TO CLAIM YOUR CRUISE PRIZE PLEASE HAVE CREDIT NUMBER READY

Leo (July 23-August 22)

Rawr, Leo means lion. Yep, you just learned something!

Virgo (August 23-September 22)

Don't worry, buddy, we're all virgins here. No zodiac-tion for us, amiright bro hahaha ha ha ha ha ha sobbing uncontrollably

Libra (September 23-October 22)

Stuff is definitely gonna happen to you this month. It'll definitely either be good or bad, and it'll either be your fault or someone else's. Don't say we didn't warn you.

Mark (November 6th)

Hey, dude. We're not exactly sure how to break the news to you, but this month's not gonna be your month. Just keep your head down and barrel on through. Also, you're a Scorpio, dipshit.

Sagittarius (November 22-December 21)

This one comes straight from your ruling planet, Jupiter: you Sagittariuses are gonna want to send us nudes, pronto. Look, we're speaking for the stars here. Don't shoot the messengers.

Capricorn (December 22- January 19)

Wham bam, thank you ram. Spam some ham on that grand old dam but watch out fam for ram on lam! Sorry, we're drunk.

Aquarius (January 20-February 19)

Haha, your ruling planet is Uranus! That's dumb. Anyway, apparently you owe somebody some money? Honestly, we were kind of zoning out by the time you guys came up.

Pisces (February 19-March 20)

As per usual, you're soooo concerned with your own month that you haven't ONCE asked us about ours. Whatever. We didn't expect you to care anyway, asshole.

SO YOU'RE A PROCRASTINATOR?

WHAT A COINCIDENCE! WE'RE ENABLERS!

What's with all this ragging on Kaldi's? C'mon guys, we're lucky to have a campus with a decent cup of Joe. I guess if you need an upgrade you can head to Einstein's, but we really shouldn't diss a quality brew.

Ocean's Twelve is the best movie in the franchise

By: Phillip Trudeau
IMDB Forum Admin

Forget about coffee; in contrast with its parent film Ocean's Eleven, Ocean's Twelve is objectively the best film of the Ocean's trilogy. We see a more confident Danny Ocean arrive to Amsterdam, having successfully swindled Terry Benedict in the preceding film. Filled with inventiveness and intrigue, Ocean's Twelve is far and away the crown jewel in the Ocean's franchise.

Finals Stress Mitigated by Impending North Korean Nuclear Threat

With finals around the corner, it's natural for college students to feel a great deal of stress. In light of the realization that finals will be meaningless due to imminent nuclear war, however, upcoming exams and papers haven't managed to have the same effect on students.

"It brings everything into perspective, really," sophomore Emma Scott said when asked about the doomsday that will occur as a result of the feud between the US and North Korea. "I feel like I don't need to worry about my GPA as much knowing that it's all meaningless if Kim Jong-Un decides to hit the big red button and end life on Earth as we know it. It's nice not having to fret over school-related stuff for once."

The whole campus's atmosphere seems noticeably more relaxed given the knowledge that, in a tense political climate where even a single tweet can have irreversible ramifications, it's important to appreciate the smaller things in life and not let academics or day-to-day busywork bog you down.

"I actually stopped and smelled the roses on my way to the DUC this morning," senior Chris Miller said. "I know that's usually just a phrase, but I actually did it. It's never crossed my mind before, but I figured since everything I know will inevitably turn into an uninhabitable radioactive wasteland, I might as well enjoy nature while I still can."

Chris was later seen leaping for cover under a bench when he heard a siren, only to dust himself off and nervously chuckle when he realized it was a monthly tornado drill.
