

WU Underground

More interesting than your Instagram feed!

VOLUME 13, ISSUE 7

APRIL 5, 2017

PRICE: $35,000 with benefits

After a Month of Crushing Defeats, Trump Gathers Cabinet to Beat Them at "Trump The Game"

After a month of crushing defeats, Trump gathers cabinet to beat them at "Trump The Game"

It's been a rough month for President Trump. With his refugee ban blocked by federal judges and Obamacare intact after a disastrous episode in Congress, Trump has few successes and many broken campaign promises under his belt. However,

Trump's L-train seems to be in reverse after President Trump crushed his cabinet when they play "Trump The Game" this past weekend.

"Yeah, I can't really say it was that fun," said Ben Carson, Secretary of Housing and Urban Development. "[Trump] just called us lightweights and losers for 5 hours, all while laughing maniacally and taking our fake game money. If he was ever losing he'd just make up rules because 'it was his game and he could do what he wanted'."

Originally released in 1989, with extremely confusing rules and even worse sales led to Trump's board game being discontinued just one year after its' release. According to Parker Brothers executive Peter Thrope, the game didn't connect with players because playing Trump the Game "leaves you exhausted and feeling like you don't want to play again." Coincidentally, 65% of Americans today say the same thing about Trump the President.

In the coming months, Trump is looking to mix up his schedule to allow more time to crush his cabinet members in Trump The Game. According to Kellyanne Conway, Trump plans on working "very, very hard on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday while dedicating the rest of the week to golf and playing Trump The Game." As of presstime, Trump was seen boarding a plane for Mar-a-Lago while carrying his game and an expression of gleeful anticipation.

"I am so, so good at my game. The best"

StudLife Embroiled in Controversy After Lower-Middle Class Student Writes Review for Pastaria

Writing last week in Studlife that the upscale Clayton restaurant Pastaria is a "must-try," sophomore Studlife reporter Tommy Wright is in hot water, being criticized for "cultural appropriation." Tommy, whose father is a plumber and mom is a secretary, decided to write about Pastaria after hearing about it from floormates. However, after Studlife published the article late last Sunday night, wealthy kids across the Wash U campus threw up their arms in disgust.

"The offensiveness of this article is almost laughable," said John Miller, whose father is a film executive. "How dare a poor person talk about Pastaria! That reporter and people like him are ruining our culture. Haven't they heard of cultural appropriation? That type of behavior disgusts me."

Since publishing the article, Tommy has been keeping a low profile, even going so far as deleting his Facebook account. Many

Continued on page 4

A crowd gathers outside StudLife's Office to protest, support "Rich Guys Matter"

Buried WU Underground

Does Campus Smell Like Shit or Did You Shit Your Pants? 5 Easy Ways to Tell

Page p00p

Student Suffers Aneurysm After Reading Student Libel

Page 4/10

Sophomore Who Likes His Popcorn "A Little Burnt" Sets Off SoFoHo Fire Alarm for Eighth Time

Page 6 (and counting)

Guy Starts Health Blog After Ordering Lettuce Instead of Chips on His Taco Salad

Page 2.017

傅元辉 Now Goes By Jennifer for Attendance

Page A5

StudLife publishes Comprehensible Graph!

Page :^)

Forsyth Apartment Increasingly Nervous Assholes Might Actually Rent It

Reports confirmed that local apartment 7222 Forsyth Blvd. 3W is growing uneasy that the snot-nosed punks who toured it last week might actually sign the lease and rent it. With no new tours since then, 3W has been left to contemplate what it calls "a worst case scenario." "I can't imagine what I would do if those guys actually moved into me," reported the three bedroom, one and a half bath apartment. "One of them was even taking pictures. Jesus Christ I think they could be serious." The apartment first reacted to the sheer, unwashed smell of the visitors, clamping closed its air conditioning vents to avoid breathing the noxious fumes. 3W became more uncomfortable when two of the potential tenants starting asking about living with a pet. "I could tell they weren't talking about a cat or a dog," it added.

7222 Forsyth 2E, a neighbor and longtime friend to 7222 Forsyth 3W, told reporters 3W was likely feeling anxious after a breakup with its previous tenants, a group of kindly graduate students.

"3W took the loss hard. The old residents were so nice to it and bought it all this tasteful furniture, so it wasn't easy to watch them go," said 2E.

Real Estate agent and apartment whisperer Jillian Banbury told reporters that what 3W is going through is normal for domiciles with a history of abandonment. "3W feels like it is being used," she reported. "Tenants come and go, so it can be difficult for an apartment to build trust, especially when some residents are as awful as the three little shits who looked at it last week."

The important thing to remember, Banbury added, was that apartments definitely can and do cry.

7222 Forsyth Blvd, pictured, wishes he lived in different part of town

These Vehicles are NOT Transformers— So Don't Even Ask

This is a pick up truck. We know what you're thinking, but don't be bamboozled. This one's NOT A TRANSFORMER.

Ok you got us on this one. It's the good guy, Optimum Prime. He's the leader of the Autobots...PSYCH! WE ALREADY TOLD YOU: THESE CARS DON'T CHANGE

We know what you're thinking; this looks just like that Bumblebee guy. You're just gonna have to take us at our word on this one.

Don't you say it. Don't you dare fucking say it.

Uh-Oh, what about this one? Could be a Decepticon EXCEPT THAT IT'S NOT SO JUST STOP LITERALLY READ THE TITLE.

WUnderground

WUnderground is WashU's premier [only] satirical newspaper and should be taken about as seriously as the fake wood grain on a s'well water bottle.

However, the news reported by this paper is completely fictitious, at least to our knowledge. Any resemblance to persons living, ailing or dead is entirely intentional.

Chiefs of Staff

Callan Coghlan
President

Patricia Witt
Editor in Chief

Simon Olson
Editor in Chief

Staff

- Aaron Dozzi
- Josh Moskow
- Blake Robertson
- Kimball Slade
- Adam Kaufmann
- Jacob Nason
- Carter Paterson
- Gabby Perez-Garcia
- Ted Sorota

Unpaid Interns

- Nathan Marak
- Henry Weinberg
- Zach Moskow
- Rohit Kumar
- Grace Fellman
- Arjun Puri
- Brooke Nosratian

Foreign Correspondents

- Justin Kröll
- Nate Graham
- Landon Lichtenstein

If you would like to write, edit, tell us your deepest secrets, etc. then email us at: wunderground@su.wustl.edu

ISSN # 1938-0089

wunderground.wustl.edu

Roommate Also Excited to Stop Living With You

Things were nice before she started sexiling you every day...

According to sources close to your roommate, they are just as excited to stop living with you as you are to stop living with them. The same sources also confirmed that you are incorrect to believe that your roommate still likes you even though you complain about them to anyone who listens.

Although you often complain about how much you hate your roommate's idiosyncratic sleeping habits and the frequency with which they sexile you, they hate you just as much for your habit of frequently complaining about them. Honestly, it's shocking that you think your roommate still likes you.

I mean, why would they? Last semester, you got drunk and peed all over their desk. I know you thought no one would find out, but it was 1 PM. Your roommate was on their way back from the library and got to your room just after you passed out in a pile of your own filth. You also texted your roommate, "Peed om yout dess lol," which blew your cover.

Even then, your roommate forgave you. But they changed their mind a month ago when you drunkenly doused their bed in what you thought was gasoline and tried to light it on fire with them in it. Luckily for everyone involved, BD does not sell gasoline and you have no idea how to use matches. After that, everyone on your floor agreed that you are the worse roommate out of the two of you.

At press time, your roommate confirmed that they don't hate you, but they are a bit worried about the crossbow under your bed.

Wunderground Reviews Dave Chappelle Netflix Special

After a long break from the limelight, Dave Chappelle is back in action with a new Netflix series. The eponymously named series currently has two episodes, each with a runtime of one hour. Both episodes are superb, with Chappelle discussing contemporary issues that are totally relatable.

However, Chappelle's stand-up is sometimes a bit tricky to understand. You might not get all the references in the special, and some of the jokes might go over your head. If you're looking for someone who can watch the special with you and explain jokes you might not understand, my phone number is 541-231-2459.

I'm generally free on Thursdays and Fridays, but would also be down to make a Saturday afternoon out of it. I'm an anthropology major, and my interests include cycling, history, and cooking. I'm five-foot eleven-inches and people say I'm pretty good looking.

If you're not in the mood for TV, we could also go on a hike or something. My fraternity's formal is coming up in a couple weeks if you've never been to Nashville before or would like to go again. Life's been pretty tough after my long time girlfriend broke up with me a couple weeks ago, but I PROMISE not to talk about her too much. Please, please let me know if you want to watch this special with me.

Chappelle's a funny guy, just like me!

Point

Can I eat Luna Bars if I'm a dude?

By: Senior Dude
Ought to know this by now

So I know I'm like way behind, but can I eat Luna Bars if I'm a dude? Like they look super dank but they're for women... so like do they have estrogen in them? Will I grow boobies or like get all emotional and shit? I dunno man, I really wanna try those peppermint ones, they look so chocolate-y and peppermint-y and dope but like is it worth if I grow boobies? Or am I thinking about soy with the whole estrogen thing?

Counter-Point

Gender. is. a. social. construct.

By: Amelia Barnes
Woke Sophomore Girl

It's 2017, wake up and smell the fucking cold brew. Have you not figured out in your four years of college that gender is completely made up and having breasts does not make you a woman! Like I can't believe you can't get that through your thick skull. I bet you assume pronouns too, like excuse me you wouldn't just assume someone's name! You ask, you patriarchical... oh what? Luna Bars? OMG I LOVE Luna Bars, they're soooo good. I can't believe you haven't had them before! And lol they don't have estrogen, you're thinking about soy. Common misconception.

StudLife Controversy Over Pastaria Review Continued...

students have written him threatening emails and letters warning him about encroaching on their culture and lifestyles.

"I thought Wash U was supposed to be a welcoming place for rich kids like myself," wrote Sammy Kinder in an email to Tommy. "Instead, we get these culturally insensitive pieces from our student newspaper. What the fuck is wrong with you? Why can't you have an ounce of respect for our culture?" Both of Sammy's parents are Wall Street attorneys.

As of presstime, Tommy was last seen replying "no thanks" after being asked if he wanted extra meat or gauc at the burrito station in the DUC.

Top 10...

Worst Car Air Fresheners

10. Piping-Hot Dog Breath
9. Piping Hot-Dog Breath
8. Piping Hot Bog Death
7. WILD vomit
6. Roadtrip Backseat
5. Swamp Friend
4. Spring Mulch
3. Your Grandparents' Basement
2. Sprouting Onion
1. Cinnamon

IS YOUR DOG DEAD?

What Do You Think?

Planned Parenthood Got Defunded. What Do You Think?

Casey

A nice, quiet, young woman

"Uhh... does anyone want my opinion?"

Howard Mann

Old White Man

"Good."

Chad

Loves Busting Inside

"Does this mean I can't bust inside anymore?"

Brett

Chad's Bro

"Man I can't believe Chad can't bust inside anymore :/"

George Washington

Pro Choice