

Sniper Planning on "Taking Out" Girlfriend for Valentine's Day

Recently returned from a tour of duty in Afghanistan, US Army Sniper Sgt. Eric Wexler has reportedly been dropping hints that he plans on "taking out" his longtime girlfriend Kim Harris on Valentine's Day this year.

"Ever since we got back from Afghanistan, all he can talk about is how excited he is for the big day, and how it's going to change everything for him," said David Bignonia, a squad-mate of Wexler's. "I'm really glad to hear it, because it seems like the two of them would almost never talk or email when he was away. I was sure they had a falling out, but I guess not."

Wexler's neighbors have also noticed changes in the 35-year-old, highly trained marksman's behavior.

"I always see him talking on his cell-phone out by the garage," said neighbor Craig Davis. "He must have a big surprise for Kim he doesn't want her to know about."

"Oh yeah, I'm going to take her out alright," said Wexler, glancing around the room to take sure his girlfriend wasn't in ear-shot. "We're going to this real fancy sushi restaurant downtown that she just loves! I made it seem like they were all booked up, but then I snuck outside and made a reservation when she wasn't listening. She's going to flip!"

When asked if his use of the phrase "take her out" could create confusion given his unique profession, Wexler had this to say:

"What the fuck, you mean like kill her? No man, she's my girlfriend, who even thinks of shit like that?"

Eric was top marksman and voted "most charming" in his class at West Point!

Freshman Girl Discovers 150 "Long-Lost Sisters;" Confronts Parents

Last weekend, upon accepting a bid to WashU's Gamma Upsilon Chapter of the Theta Omega Epsilon International Women's Fraternity, freshman Ariella Rosenfeld made an alarming discovery: around 150 sisters, which she had not previously known to exist-- and they were all hers. Annie, who grew up ostensibly as an only child, recounted, "I could tell throughout recruitment that I had a connection with the girls in Theta O, but when I accepted my bid, I finally understood why-- they were my long-lost sisters. I have never felt such a sense of belonging in my life." However, Ariella's exciting initial revelation was followed by a much more unsettling realization. She testified: "I realized that my parents must have known about all my other sisters all these years-- why would they hide the joy of sisterhood from me? I was confused, upset, and above all, angry. I decided to confront them."

Ariella's father, Adam Rosenfeld, describes the encounter, which played out over the phone the night Ariella accepted her bid, as "concerning, to say the least. She was also pretty clearly Ariella's new sisters, who all look suspiciously alike...

Student Taxidermy Club Forced To Shutter After Discovery of "Josh From K4" Exhibit

ST LOUIS— Reports of strange activity linked to members of Beary Stiff, the campus taxidermy club, were met with further investigation after maintenance staff stumbled upon a preserved student corpse on Friday afternoon. Sources say that freshman student Josh Tambor was found mummified in a 2nd floor Olin study room, nursing a crusted Half and Half. Visitors also found an etched nameplate, stenciled "Josh From Koenig 4." The student was first reported missing by his Launch father on Wednesday evening, who noticed his absence at a Kingsbury darty.

Members of the student organization have denied any affiliation with the discovery. "Have we always wanted a human exhibit? Yes. But did we do this? Who's to say," said club president Mike "Formaldehyde" McDonough. "This is just an attempt to discredit the silent minority!" Student Union officers first raised suspicion when the group's expense reports contained an inordinate amount of chemical preservatives and web research on "human-sized net" and "is human taxidermy legal in Missouri?" "All hearsay," McDonough reiterated, deleting multiple tabs on his Chrome browser without breaking eye contact. As of press time, WUPD is investigating the disappearance of three students who were last spotted signing up for the Taxidermy Club email chain at the activities fair.

SHS Prepping for Housing Casualties, 2017 Academic Calendar

In advance of housing petitions opening, Student Health Services has hired some of the world's top surgeons to mitigate the school's annual rooming-inspired mass casualties. "Each year anywhere between fifty and one hundred underclassmen are killed by former suitemates," claimed SHS director Ira Glass. "Although we can't stop the coordinated acts of violence that lead to such fatalities, we can ensure victims live to hold grudges against former friends, at least until the following year's petitions open."

According to Student Health Services, every few years brings a new method of choosing a suite's last member, but one-on-one, turn-and-shoot duels have recently gained popularity. Supporters applaud duels for preventing the awkwardness of being honest with a suitemate you don't want to live with, but they do not always end as desired.

"It's always tough to lose a suitemate," said sophomore Isabel Smith, whose desired suitemate

The WUnderground Award—Season Showdown

Well it's that time of year again: porno awards season! Hollywood is abuzz with buzz, and critics are slurping up films like particularly delicious semen. Female pornstars are dressing up real nice, and male pornstars are showing off their finest designer assless chaps. Redheaded pornstars finally get to walk down a carpet that matches the drapes. Here are some of the performances and pornos that will double-penetrate their way into your heart this February.

Best Actor:

Rod P. Thrust turned in a chilling performance in Cocksaw Ridge, and William Greengooch Elliot thrust his way to the A-List in the sci-fi smash The Man With Two Dicks, One is 12 Inches and One is 4.5 Inches, but no one's beating off Henry Longfellow, who earned universal acclaim for his complex portrayal of Ken Bone, in Ken Bone: American Stud: Stars and Stripes: A True Hero.

Best Actress:

This category is femDOMINATED by performances in Indie cinema this year. Candy Clitoria showed off her vulnerable side in Manchester by the Penis, Anna L. Applebottom displayed her acting chops, in addition to all her holes, in Arrival, and Jessica "Tits" McGee exhibited her ability to please both men and women in Sluts Love Facials 5. This category, like "Tits" McGee, could go either way.

Best Porno:

This one isn't even a contest. Every critic agrees that Poonlight is the best, most subtle, best porno of the decade. No condoms were involved in its production, but it's definitely a Magnum opus.

Best Cinematography:

This one is a tough field with a lot of qualified entries. We're gonna have to go for Patrick McCock for his work on La La Les.

If you wanna learn how to go down on a girl here are some tips!

By: April Fitz
Straight, Cis, Female

So the most important thing is that you really listen to and trust your partner. Without good communication and a strong connection, either of you enjoying the experience will be challenging! So before you get in the moment you should talk to her about expectations, boundaries, and what will make both of you feel comfortable and provide the most pleasure. Every person's anatomy and desires are different, so just make sure you're communicating clearly and openly and everyone should have a great time.

hammered." Her mother, Sarah, adds, "Ari's conclusions confirmed all the reservations I had about her joining Greek Life." However, her parents' denial of her allegations and their gentle reminder that her sorority sisters are all more or less the same age as her merely led her to an even more disturbing recognition: that her father must have kept hundreds of concubines before Ariella was born. She reasoned, "He must have kept them secret from my mother somehow! How could he betray her, and how could she be so oblivious! Or was she okay with it or something?"

Ariella's series of unpleasant discoveries only raise more questions. "How many more of my sisters might there be out there? Theta O has more than 200,000 sisters all over the country! Is this even bigger than I thought? Is this some sort of Genghis Khan thing?" For the time being, though,

Ariella is mostly happy to be part of her sisterhood. "I love all my newly found sisters. It's just too bad about this whole thing with my parents. I don't know if I'll ever be able to trust them again, or forgive them. I guess I just have to come to terms with what happened and make up for lost time with my girls. Let's hit the Row, ladies!"

Jordyn Anderson was forced into administrative assignment after losing a near-fatal duel with her former roommate, Amber Webster last February. "Jordyn was always super sweet, and Amber's just the worst. But Jordyn's bullet veered left, and Amber hit her right in the tit." Following Jordyn's recovery, Isabel claims the suite fought for a rematch. "We challenged the decision, but Res Life's policy is very clear: students must honor the results of all duels, regardless of the loser's survival."

At press time, SHS announced their intention to continue to misdiagnose and neglect those in need of medical attention until housing petitions open.
