Hazing Process Tarnished by Fraternity Accusations

What does HAZING mean to you?

Bonding and Friendship?      Sharing memories?      Leaving your comfort zone?

Stand up and lead: report Fraternities to HazeLife@wustl.edu

A poster for Wash U's Anti-Fraternity campaign.

The Wash U chapter of Sigma Rho Pi, one of the nation's oldest hazing societies, has come under fire in recent weeks due to accusations of dangerous and widespread fraternity occurring within the group.

The story broke when freshman pledge Alex Wess came forward and admitted to the University that he was being forced to develop meaningful and lasting communal bonds with other members in his pledge class.

"At first, we were all just being forced to drink vinegar and vomit profusely," Wess explained. "But then one day, I looked into my friend's eyes, which were red and puffy from hours of vomiting, and said, 'Dear brother, let me shoulder your burden. Give unto me your vinegar and horseradish concoction.' How dare other brothers force me to develop such a deep connection with another human being."

"It'll take me years to get over the lasting damage caused by these friendships," he added.

The University takes fraternity allegations very seriously and offers many resources for counseling, as well as tips on how to recognize the signs that a friend might be getting fraternitied. Andy Riley, Wess's roommate, noticed that Wess was exhibiting many of these new behaviors.

"Wess just hasn't been himself lately. He comes back at crazy hours on Fridays and Saturdays just covered in beer and lipstick," Riley explained. "And he keeps talking about how he likes these new, different, and interesting people, and how they're positively impacting his outlook and personality. He's clearly depressed and getting fraternitied."

The University has sought to remind students that paddles are available for sale in the bookstore to anybody who remains interested in continuing the time-honored tradition of beating the shit out of pledges.

Student Graduates Realizing He's Not Actually Jewish

Graduating senior Eric Smith experienced a revelation this past Saturday when he realized that he is not actually Jewish - a fact that he had slowly forgotten since coming to Wash U four years ago.

"I was walking past Graham Chapel and all of a sudden I just realized, wait, what am I doing?" Smith said. "I was raised Catholic - what the fuck am I doing wearing this yarmulke?"

"And holy shit, when did I get that circumcision?!" he added.

Although the reasons behind Smith's confusion remain uncertain, friends of Smith suggest that his descent into Jewish observance resulted after a long and gradual process of indoctrination.

"Freshman year I talked him into going with me to Chabad for dinner a couple times," said Smith's friend Andrew Levinstein. "And he really enjoyed Passover Seder with my cousins out in Creve Couer."

Continued Levinstein: "You know, now that I think about it, Eric was the one who really wanted to make latkes over Channukah sophomore year."

Smith says he plans on doing some soul-searching over the coming weeks as he seeks to reassess his faith, his religious identity, and whether or not it is possible to reattach a foreskin.

Smith actually is not Jewish, despite looking like he is.

Report: Beloved Cookie Cake Killed

Mikey just confirmed that the beloved cookie cake has been killed.

The news came as a shock to Dylan Foster, who was looking forward to a bright future with the cookie cake.

"I was too late. This is all my fault," Foster sobbed. "I asked somebody to get me a piece, but dammit, they just couldn't save it, man!"

"WHY GOD WHY!?" he cried. "I didn't even get to say goodbye or taste it!"

Those who knew the cookie cake describe it as having been a warm and fun-loving cake that would bring joy to everyone the moment it entered the room.

A birthday-candlelight vigil will be held this Sunday to tastefully celebrate the life of the cookie cake. In light of the tragedy, Foster is doing his best to remain positive. "At least the cookie cake is up there in heaven with all of the angel food cakes," he said.

Based on the knife and splattered frosting found at the scene, forensic analysts say cookie cake was killed after suffering multiple stab wounds.

Fraternity Evicts Homeless Man Living in Thurtene Facade

A campus fraternity was forced to evict a local homeless man after they discovered that he had taken up residence in its recently constructed Thurtene facade.

"Go away homeless man! Shoo! This building is for charity!" said senior Glenn Howes. "This is for Habitat for Humanity, you leech!"

At press time, the man was still homeless after the fraternity failed to raise enough money to build a house for the poor guy.

WUnderground Embezzles Money, But Still Less Than Thurtene

Allegations have surfaced that WUnderground has embezzled money from its recent fake fundraiser, but it is still nothing compared to Thurtene.

"Sure, I definitely skimmed a couple of cents off the top," said an anonymous WUnderground staffer who is writing this article. "But you know, not nearly as much of a cut as the members of Thurtene Honorary take from their fake fundraiser."

Stoner Food Critic Goes to the Loop

Stoner Food Critic is written by Steve Harper. He guarantees that all reviews are written while high as tits. It is featured in 203 various newspapers and food blogs across the country.

By the time the pizza came out, I had sobered up and left. So, um, fuck you Pi.

This was the first place I went to and I don't know how, but the staff there just knew. You know? I don't get it, but they always know. Anyway, it took a lot of time for the cookies to bake, seriously man it felt like hours, but the experience of eating those 8 chocolate chip cookies at once was totally worth it.

Dude, was I here already? I think I was here already. Why the fuck are there four identical Thai places within like a two block radius on the loop? Yes, I definitely saw that ceramic pot in the window earlier. Wait, did I? Damn you ambiguously designed ceramic Thai pot! How many of you are there? Why do all Thai Restaurants look the same?

Bubble tea is like an alien descending upon an 18th century farmer in his field outside Boston, and just blowing his mind. I can't understand the taste, the colors, the textures, or the wallpaper of this new universe. And then you stab the gooey ball thing, and is this the real world, man? Or is this just, like, a parallel universe, and where does that leave you, man?

Oh dude get voodoo chips. Get 'em, get 'em, get 'em. They're so good dude. Honestly, why would you ever get Jimmy John's over Snarf's? Also, why does every sandwich shop have to have some possessive title? Like, think about it. Snarf's. Jimmy John's. Pickleman's. HOOOOLY SHIT! And Pointer's too. WHAT IS THIS. What did I just uncover? Oh God, I hope they don't come after me. No. Just be cool. Deep breaths. You're tweaking man. It's all in your mind. Okay. Whew.

I have never been more uncomfortable in my life. The guy serving me just stared me down and I don't know if it was because he is just generally surly, he knew I was stoned, or he was staring into the depths of my soul. In any case, suuuuper uncomfortable.

Food was good though. Definitely underrated.

Oh don't gasp. I said restaurants dammit.

Hang on hang on. Somebody said there's a secret menu. What? Sweet Jesus! Are fucking with me man?

A QUESORITO!? Are you SERIOUS!!!!!!???? Is that like, a quesadilla AND a burrito? I'm literally crying. Do not be fucking me with right now bro, because I can't handle this shit.

Oh man. It's like an Asian person and Mexican guy impregnating me with a delicious food baby. But can we take a second to talk about Sriracha? Seriously, this condiment came out of nowhere and is now the default red sauce for many people. Look the fuck out Ketchup. I bet there's like some big shot Heinz CEO sweating nuts as Sriracha moves to corner the market. Out of nowhere man. It's like the 8 seed reaching the final four. Talk about an up and coming market disrupting condiment. It's like having sex, except it burns less.

OH MY GOD AND FOZZIE'S TOO!

AAAAAH!

Ew, salad? That's like eating wet strips of paper.

International Student Has to Repeat Name

International student Chirtanjeeva Gurdeepshaal was asked to repeat his name several times while introducing himself to strangers at a party last weekend.

"It's cool, white people fuck it up all the time," said Gurdeepshaal. "I just tell them, it's like 'Shirt on Jeev, as in Ask Jeeves, and then ah' and they'll usually get it after a few tries."

When asked about Chirtanjeeva, partygoer Alexandra Rogers said, "Oh, that Sriracha guy? Yeah, he was cool. What about him?"

Administration Under Fire for Hazing Pre-Froshes

The Washington University administration has received criticism after it became known that the admissions office had sent prospective students on a scavenger hunt around campus.

"This is fucking bullshit," said Chancellor Mark S. Wrighton. "Tell these overly sensitive pricks to shut up! It's not hazing! It's a goddam scavenger hunt!!"

At press time, the University was busy suspending a fraternity for sending its pledges on a scavenger hunt.

Counter-Point

Dude, What are You Saying?

by Zack Hamlin, English speaker

The fuck?
What are you saying, dude? Are you trying to communicate a series of thoughts to me right now? I don't even know if you're trying to make one point or cram five into one unintelligible sentence. I think I heard the word 'island' in there? What's a mook? Is that racist? Uh oh, I hope they can print that.

Guy Buys Wine at Schnucks Like He's Got a Girlfriend or Something

Tanner attempting to impress some poor girl by saying "It's a 2007 franzia - a great year for them"

Senior Jeremy Tanner was spotted at Schnucks last Friday purchasing a bottle of Robert Mondavi Pinot Noir as if he was actually going to split it with a girl or something.

Sources say that the 21-year-old paced the aisle, frequently pausing to scratch his chin while comparing each bottle as if his ability to taste and explain the difference would boost his chances of getting laid, or whatever.

"Lots of people like wine," said the guy who must have been really trying to convince a girl that he had a clue what the difference between a merlot and shiraz was, or some shit like that.

"It's classy to know wine," he said desperately. "You know, with the tannins and stuff."

At press time, Tanner was busy apologizing to the Schnuck's clerk for knocking over and breaking a $50 bottle of cabernet, like a boob.

University To Be Repainted in Gold Over the Summer

After four years, the shimmering golden veneer that once attracted so many students to attend Wash U has since worn off.

In order to restore the illusion of perfection, the administration has announced that it will literally be repainting every single building in gold.

"It's very important to us that we maintain this gilded facade," said Chancellor Wrighton. "We don't want anyone to become disillusioned."

We Made a Mistake

God dammit, yeah we hooked up with Bearnice again. Look, we just got a little too drunk and one thing lead to another, and we dont know. But this is just a one time thing. We swear.

You don't have to say it. We know. We know how poorly she treated us when she cheated with The Onion and we won't ever forget. We won't ever let her do that to us again.
