

Shy Woman Consistently Holding Mug Claims She's an "Avid Writer"

Local bookstore clerk, Veronica Sneebler, went on record last Tuesday claiming that she's an "avid writer". However, after a week of intense investigative reporting, we have received contradictory information. According to consistent bookstore visitor and legitimate avid writer, Meredith Wang, Veronica has never actually written. To solve this potentially international dilemma, we set up multiple cameras throughout Veronica's home and place of work. Indeed, over 10,000 hours of video footage shows that Veronica has never used her hands for anything other than holding her mug close to her face, making her a liar.

Our in-house psychologist, Gary Smith, describes Veronica's disorder as being "super shy" and that holding her mug makes her feel "more comfortable while meeting new people". Gary explains that approximately 1 in 3 people are shy, and is in fact an increasing trend in America. Since Gary's announcement, over 15 writers from our publication have come out as being "shy". Needless to say, we never suspected a thing and will take active steps to becoming a more accepting work environment.

Now that being shy has become more accepted nationally (8% increase) and potentially legalized within the year, Veronica has worked up the courage to put liquids in her famous white mug.

Stop smiling like that, Veronica, and put down your fking mug.

Things Chancellor Wrighton Invented Other than Glow-Sticks

We all know Chancellor Wrighton invented glow-sticks back when he was at Cal-Tech, forever changing the rave scene for the better. What you might not know, however, is that the Chancellor has actually had a long string of important inventions. We've listed some below:

The Pill: Here's another from Wrighton's Cal-Tech days. Back in the 50s Wrighton was part of a scientific team that developed the first successful combined oral contraceptive, more commonly referred to as "the pill." So the next time you're getting raw-dogged by your boyfriend without fear of getting pregnant, you know exactly who to thank!

Windshield Wipers: It's hard to imagine driving without these, but there was a time when drivers would have to pay homeless children to squat on the hoods of their cars and wipe the rain away by hand. Wrighton grew tired of paying $3/month for this service, so one afternoon he went into his garage and invented the first set of home-made windshield wipers.

"Thomas Edison can suck my dick."

The Phrase "War on Terror": Most people think the term was coined by President Bush in the days after 9/11. Not true! It was actually first used by Chancellor Wrighton in a 1985 speech outlining the university's plans to counter student protests demanding the school divest from Apartheid South Africa.

Judeo-Christian Morality: This one is a little controversial, but here's what we know. Around 4000BC, Moses was seen leaving a closed-door meeting with Chancellor Wrighton. No one knows for sure what the two talked about, but mere hours later Moses delivered the Ten Commandments to the Israelites. More evidence? Wrighton was confirmed to have regularly used the AIM username BURNING_BUSH around this time. Coincidence? You decide.

You: Ever wonder why you always thought the Chancellor looked "slightly familiar"? We're sorry to break it to you like this. You should probably go call your mom.

WUnderground

WUnderground is WashU's premier [only] satirical newspaper and should be taken about as seriously as this election or an amber alert. However, the news reported by this paper is completely fictitious, at least to our knowledge. Any resemblance to persons living, ailing or dead is entirely intentional.

Chiefs of Staff

Callan Coghlan
President

Patricia Witt
Editor in Chief

Simon Olson
Editor in Chief

Staff

Aaron Dozzi

Josh Moskow

Justin Kroll

Blake Robertson

Kimball Slade

Nate Graham

Adam Kaufmann

Jacob Nason

Carter Paterson

Gabby Perez-Garcia

Ted Sorota

Unpaid Interns

Nathan Marak

Henry Weinberg

Zach Moskow

Rohit Kumar

Grace Fellman

Arjun Puri

Brooke Nosratian

Landon Lichtenstein

Illustrator

Merry Sun

If you would like to write, edit, tell us we're pretty, etc. then email us at:
wunderground@su.wustl.edu

91771938 008000
ISSN # 1938-0089

wunderground.wustl.edu

Guide to Greek Life Functions

With the end of the semester coming up, there are plenty of Greek functions approaching on the social calendar. If you are lucky enough to be invited to one of these exclusive events but don't know their subtle differences, don't worry: we got you. Have fun!

Date Party

RObes and a hood. Bonus points if you sharpie a pentagram on your forehead.

What to wear

If you count virgin lamb Blood as food, then yeah.

Will there be food?

You go in for the kiss on the bus, but your date turns away. You're starting to get nervous.

Music you can expect to hear

Gregorian chanting. † ♫ †

Will you hook up with your date?

Dream on buddy.

Formal

You got this buddy!

Crush Party

Nothing.

Theta Xi's Around the World

Hawaiian shirts are always a good bet. Try not to appropriate any cultures! That's not chill!

.. Probably not, but expect the beer to flow all night long.

Pretty normal, to be honest. Expect to hear "Get Low" and a lot of Drake.

No.
100%

Top 6 Majors that are Useful in a Trump Presidency

6. Computer Science

5. Dance

4. Leadership & Strategic Management

3. Religious Studies

2. Russian Studies

1. Finance

Point

I Can't Wait to Join A Greek Student Association!

By: George Yanopolis
Greek Exchange Student

Counter-Point

"We're going to stay top frat, god damn it"

By: Chad Brock
Bro

Acclimating to Wash U has definitely been rough. I haven't met any other Greek people, and there hasn't been any opportunities to do so! But I can't wait to finally embrace my homeland's culture next semester when I join Greek Life! It's a little weird that I couldn't join these groups my first semester here-- not sure what Wash U has against Greek people. I even hear they have huge houses dedicated all things Greek! I'm so excited!

You might have heard rumors on Greekrank.com that we've been slipping in the ranks, but fuck that bro. We're gonna have the best pledge class this school has ever seen. We've already been dirty rushing kids, showing them just how cool we are, how many girls we pull, and how fucking epic our parties are. Oh yeah, that shrimp exchange student kid, what was his name... Milo? Odysseus? Yeah that kid fucking sucked. No bid.

WGSS Professor Fails Students' Essay: "Not Enough Jargon"

This past Friday, WGSS Professor Taylor Reed handed back graded essays to their Women and Gender Studies class. When senior Jack Freeman was handed his essay, he was shocked to see a big F at the top. Freeman, who is taking the class to fulfill his "social differentiation" ArtSci requirement, was confused at comments such as "too coherent!!" and "why didn't you use a bigger word here???" marked throughout his essay.

"Most papers I read are so poorly written and jargon-ridden that I have absolutely no idea what the writer is getting at," Professor Reed told Wunderground in an interview. "Freeman's essay, on the other hand, was straightforward and easy to read. There was no nonsensical logical jumps, no references of something anecdotal being 'systematic,' and he didn't even ramble on about something being 'problematic!' After reading the essay and coming away with a more nuanced view of the world, I just had to fail him."

After his Friday class, Freeman took his paper to the WGS department chair, who affirmed Professor Reed's marking. The department chair explained to Freeman that since they were new on campus, the WGSS department had to remain as complicated and enigmatic as possible. "That way, we can publish essays that sound smart but don't really mean anything! Isn't that so clever?" the chair told Freeman.

Planning to graduate in December, Freeman is now worried about his future. While he had received offers from Goldman Sachs, JP Morgan Chase, and Deloitte, he will not be able to graduate or accept these offers if he fails his gender studies class. As of press time, Freeman was seen poring over dictionaries to find fancier words to use in his upcoming essay, titled "Queering The North American Diaspora: A Multi-Faceted Approach to Sexuality."

Yeast Infection Epidemic Grabbing America by the Pussy

Top 10...

Top 10 Majors that are Now Useless

10. Economics
9. Women, Gender, and Sexuality Studies
8. Environmental Studies
7. Political Science
6. History
5. Islamic Studies
4. Spanish
3. Statistics
2. Latin American Studies
1. Education

What Do You Think?

Protesters have shut down progress of the Dakota Access Pipeline: What Do You Think?

Chief Wahoo
Cleveland Indian Mascot

Chief Black Hawk
Chicago Blackhawks Mascot

Osceola
Florida Seminoles Mascot

Washington Redskin Guy
Washington Redskin Mascot

George Washington
Dollar Bill Mascot

"I stand with the Sioux Indian community.
#NoDAPL!"

"It's a travesty that the oil companies are building this pipeline through a reservation. It desecrates these people's history."

"I did my part and checked into the reservation on Facebook. I hope that makes a difference for an issue that affects so many."

"I'm so tired of Native Americans' rich culture being trampled on. It's time to do something!"

"And people think I was a racist? Jeez."