

WU Underground

ALCOHOL POLICY SPECIAL !!

WashU's Last Non-Dry Newspaper

Dedicated to Daddy <3

VOLUME 15, ISSUE 2

SEP 29, 2018

PRICE: A TENDER KISS AND A SHOT OF BENTLEY'S

WashU to Require Security Guards For Registered Dorm Parties

Citing changes to social policy, the Office of Residential Life will require hired security for registered dorm parties, effective October 2018. Former campus policies had permitted students to host personal social events, provided their RAs didn't give a shit. According to new policy, security aides will be responsible for checking student IDs, and ensuring all guests are residents of the same freshman floor.

For registered wet events, students 21+ will receive wristbands for beer or wine, provided hosts hire an approved distributor. "Eric on K4 gets the cases for our pong nights, so we told him to register as our beer guy," said Maya Anteim, a Lien 2 resident.

RCDs praised the new move, calling it "responsible underage drinking in motion." Some students, however, have voiced skepticism: "People are just going to ignore the list like always," sighed Connor Englewood, a sophomore in Rutledge. Added D1 resident John Abrams, "I don't like the idea of not registering these things, but that's where we're headed."

Campus administrators remain optimistic. "I'm confident this new policy will ensure the safety of freshmen students as they squeeze 25 of their peers into their double room, take shots of fireball, and listen to Spotify playlists titled 'LIT', but now under supervision" declared Campus Life Chair Austin Sandoval-Sweeney.

Similar policies have found mixed success on Fraternity Row. Last year, members of Sigma Alpha Epsilon faced suspension after guests discovered security staff consisted solely of Dwayne "The Rock" Johnson cutouts.

WashU administrators are confident this change will be reflected in the school's admissions appeal, a claim already coming to fruition. "They don't do this at Northwestern so I'm just gonna go there," wrote one prospective student on Niche.com.

"This alcohol policy will stop us from drinking for sure," said Nicole Park, Madison Bentley and Alyssa Notting. "No, seriously. We totally don't drink anymore. Sweeney definitely curbed that for good."

Austin Sweeney "Horrified" at Terrible Alcohol Policy He Wrote While Blackout

CLAYTON, MO - Scrolling through his texts from the previous night with a mounting sense of dread, Assistant Director of Greek Life Austin Sweeney was forced to confront the fact that he had made a terrible mistake; last night's bender had resulted in ugly and potentially long-lasting consequences.

"This new alcohol policy is fucking awful," Sweeney confessed to WU Underground reporters. "I can't believe I wrote this nonsense," he added, shaking his head as he gathered the empty wine bottles and beer cans recklessly strewn about his living room.

Sources confirmed that Sweeney was "totally hammered" when he came up with the policy, which mandates that security guards and third-party bartenders are present at registered non-dry campus events. "At least, that's what I think he meant to say," one source clarified. "His actual text said 'Securirty fhmmdmguarda barrtendr', which required some interpretation on my end."

While the policy has received criticism - both from students and Sweeney himself - others have come out in support. "I think it's a

"I have no idea what got into me," Sweeney said. "One moment I was beating myself in a Case Race, the next moment I was sitting in front of a full-fledged policy memorandum."

great idea," wrote Ursa's employee Erin Glasier. "We don't want students under the influence for quilts and crafts."

Upon follow-up, Sweeney was last seen searching for Pedialyte and Advil minutes before a press conference regarding the new policy.

Buried WU Underground

Valiant ZBT Bootleggers Will Hook You Up, Broski

Page 4=floor

Top 10 Liquors to Pour Down the Sink as Your RCD Approaches

Page Riddles Three

Austin Sweeney Signs $2 Mil Sponsorship Deal with Natty Lite

Page 10=never have i ever

Op-Ed: "I Liked Beer. I Still Like Beer."

Brett Kavanaugh on WashU's new Alcohol Policy

Page 3=me

Junior Takes Free Uber to Get ESTd From Campus

Page 6=chicks

BUIs Skyrocket as WUPD Cracks Down on Intoxicated Scooters

Page 9=rhyme

EST Watches On Helplessly as Freshman Vomits on Other Side of Throop Drive

EST Watches On Helplessly as Freshman Vomits on Other Side of Throop Drive

On Saturday, September 22, Freshman Tyler Tylerson was making a trip back from an off-campus party on Waterman to the South 40, belligerently intoxicated, when he began to feel ill at the intersection of Throop Drive and Forest Park Parkway. Fortunately for Tylerson, his bouts of alcohol poisoning took place a mere 10 yards from Nikki Fried, a Junior EST Medic who happened to be on duty. Unfortunately for him, he had not yet crossed the official border into campus, and thus could not reap the benefits of Fried's medical expertise.

As Tylerson continued to dry heave and vomit on his hands and knees, Fried went into a concerned panic and began to frantically wave in her own direction, indicating to Tylerson to cross the street into the Village. When Tylerson would not respond to these signals, Fried turned to her basic training. "From my side of the street, I tried shouting the basic gauntlet of questions to test for alcohol poisoning: 'What year is it?,' 'Who is the President of the United States?,' etc.," Fried told WUnderground at press time. "When he responded to both with 'Mark Ruffalo is the best actor in Hollywood!' in between puking sessions, I knew he was far past the point of alcohol poisoning." Tylerson, however, was not made aware of his medical situation, as Fried felt that providing that information to an off-campus student would violate the EST Hippocratic Oath.

After several more unproductive back-and-forth shouting sessions, Tylerson passed out onto the sidewalk. "I knew I had to do something at this point, but I forgot the number for off-campus emergencies," explained Fried. Instead, sources indicate that Tylerson was strewn across the steps leading to the Knight Center. WUnderground staff caught up with Tylerson himself on Monday, who claimed he

"I'm proud of how I handled the situation," reports Fried. "I did everything I could, and that's what matters in the end."

somehow found himself on the Dardick 2 common room couch Sunday morning confused, sweaty, and very much upsetting the WUSAs. When WUnderground relayed this information to Fried, she smiled and referred to herself as a "hero."

Top 10...

Ways to Have Fun Without Alcohol

Desperate times call for desperate measures.

11. Drink
10. do sex!!!! hahaha just kidding you can't get laid unless everyone around you is drinking you fucking loser
9. write MOONSHINE on kombucha bottles and sell them to your WUSA kids
8. Donate blood for the dizziness
7. Jumping off stuff
6. Become the company's top scarer
5. Ask what your country can do for you
4. Reflect on the embarrassing moments from your pre-teen years as they flood past the security beer afforded you
3. Go see what's taking your dad so long at the gas station
2. Get absolutely ripshit high off Elmer's glue
1. Transfer

*We regret to announce that due to unforeseen circumstances, Coke has pulled itself from the recipe. However, we are very excited to announce that Pepsi will be joining the drink!

DIY Cocktails For Pregaming Yourself Into a Coma

Now that you can't drink at frat parties, you're going to have to bring the contraband into the comfort of your home. Not to fear! We've compiled a list of DIY drinks to help you achieve that perfect frat-basement blackout.

AEPi Jungle Juice

Just like daddy used to make.

[redacted at request of AEPi]*

The Lisa

1. Tears
2. Masturbation
3. Everclear
4. Memories of her smile...oh god...her beautiful smile...

*Jk it's just Hawaiian punch and cough syrup

The BD Classic

1. The last half shot of your roommate's Smirnoff
2. Paws N' Go lemonade
3. Pretending to be drunk

The Construction Site

1. Cement

Tequila (8AM class at) Sunrise

1. Tequila
2. Emergen-C

The Chancellor Wrighton

1. Shot of a drink of your choice, filled to 2/3 the height of a normal shot

The Martin

1. Two shots of a drink of your choice, poured into really small glasses.

The SPB

1. Gin
2. Coke*

Point

By: Austin Sweeney

Campus Life Coordinator

By banning hard alcohol from parties on Fraternity Row, we can ensure safety and promote responsible drinking for the student body.

Counterpoint

By: Sean Ploo

Freshman currently passed out in a pool of his own vomit from playing 3 games of beer die

"Yeah, I totally agree."