

WUnderground

The New York Times Bestseller

VOLUME 15, ISSUE 1

AUG 31, 2018

PRICE: $16.99, BATTERIES NOT INCLUDED

PRINT MEDIA IS UNDER ATTACK!

Help us destroy it by joining the WUnderground staff!
Applications go live on Friday, August 31st, 2018 at 5PM.
To learn more, find us at the Activities Fair next to StudLife, a nonprofit group that combats literacy.

EXCLUSIVE: WUnderground's First Video!

Wow. Where do we start?! We have so many people to thank for helping us reach this milestone. First off, thanks to our production team for keeping those cameras a-rollin'. Our casting managers, for burying that body. Our wife and son, for believing in us when nobody else would. Our comedic inspirations- StudLife, we tip our hats to you- and our Muses- that's right, Chandler from Friends, you're the wind beneath our wings. - for giving us something to strive towards. And, of course, we're endlessly grateful to our generous sponsors at Borders, Blockbuster, and the First Church of George Lopez.

They say it takes a village. Turns out, most of the village is unnecessary; that said, we'd like to thank the Witch Doctor for his sage advice, and also the drugs. Most of all, we'd like to thank YOU, our devoted fans, for your readership; and, starting today, your viewership. Without further ado, we're proud and SO excited to present our first video ever, available exclusively in the paper you hold in your very hands! Check it out below.

WashU Football Accepts First Fall Applications

Washington University Athletics released applications on Friday for those interested in joining the 2018 Varsity Football program. The Division III athletic powerhouse is looking for applicants with a "strong academic focus" and "reasonable self-awareness of athletic potential."

Candidates previously considered for Division I eligibility will be considered, though candidates who performed averagely in high school programs will be treated with priority. The Bears will also allow both SAT and ACT scores for prospective players for 2018, a change from past years' admissions.

For more information, students are encouraged to contact WashU Athletics or the former rush chairs of Phi Delta Theta.

"Applying for WashU football was the best decision I ever made," comments Linebacker Taylor Spurlock. "Also, they didn't include any essay questions, which was dope."

Buried WUnderground

Incriminating! Investigators Catch Paul Manafort Filling BD "Water" Cup with Sprite

Page 4=floor

Abroad Students Press Charges Against Europe, Claim It "Isn't Like the Club at All"

Page 8=mate

Nation Continues Cocaine-Addled Experiment with Democracy

Page 10=never have i ever

Price of BD Brunch Raised to 300 Meal Points and 1 Swift Kick in Balls

Page 3=me

Cool Freshman Knows Someone Here

Page 6=chicks

How to Stop Mansplaining, Presented Loudly and Unprompted by Me

Page 9=rhyme

President Burns Forest to Prevent Books on Climate Change

CALIFORNIA- President Trump paid a visit to the nation's largest redwood forest on Friday armed with a clear mission: to protect American forests from exploitation by climate study publishers.

"The time has come," declared Mr. Trump, "to fight fake news at its source." In a press conference at Sequoia National Park, the president announced his intent to destroy the forest to prevent it's co-opting by research publishers. "You either die a hero, or live long enough to become fake news," Mr. Trump said. Mr. Trump voiced specific concern that climatologists would seek to harvest the ancient trees as raw material for false papers on shifting global temperatures. "On my way to the park, just now, I saw two-three people walking past me with backpacks," exclaimed the President. "They're literally smuggling these trees out of here."

According to reports, executive aides repeatedly informed Mr. Trump that the UNESCO-protected site was not eligible for use in paper manufacturing; the president, however, refused any "half measures" on the issue. "You won't be able to hurt people anymore," Mr. Trump declared to applause, igniting the forest behind him.

Adele's "Set Fire to the Rain" playing softly but insistently in background

Subway Finally Recognized as Academic Department

Each new year brings sweeping changes to academic life at Washington University. This semester, we celebrate a transition that has long been overdue: Subway has been granted academic department status.

Subway's main office is located on the first floor of Mallinckrodt. Even though the location hasn't changed, Subway's faculty is eager to see what the new year has in store. Anthony, who has been working the register in Mallinckrodt for two years, says, "This is great news. I'm eager to see where this year takes us."

The Subway major is already attracting plenty of students. Freshman Amanda Guggenheim plans to major in Subway with a concentration in Flatbreads.

"I've been searching for a major to complete alongside the pre-med track, and the Subway major sounds right up my alley," said Guggenheim in an exclusive interview. "I've always had a passion for abnormally quick toasters as well as privately held fast food franchises."

All students are encouraged to take Subway 111A, the introductory lecture course that briefly covers widely accepted sandwich-making strategems, as well as a comprehensive history of the Subway corporation. Taking 111A will allow students to take electives such as Introduction to Meats & Cheeses or Difficult Customers I. Even more advanced classes include Subway 313: Manufacturing "The Smell" and Subway 347: How to Keep the Tuna Fresh. Preference for these courses is given to majors and minors.

Those interested in learning more about WashU's newest field of study should attend the Subway academic department's celebratory luncheon this Monday in that weird cement seating area in Bowles Plaza just outside Mallinckrodt. The event will be catered by Jimmy John's.

Students enrolled in Subway 212: Fantastic Yeasts and Where to Find Them tackle academic topics ranging from Experimental Yeast Theory to Breading Comprehension.

OPINION: I Don't Know How a Caucus Works and at This Point I'm Too Afraid to Ask

Ok, look. I try to stay informed. I know it's important. But I'm just gonna lay my cards on the table: I've got no goddamn clue what goes on at a caucus. Like I know there's voting, someone definitely votes. Also, I think raccoons get a vote, but only in midterm years? Someone definitely wears a crown, and people dance in pairs. Wait, fuck, that's the Renaissance Fair.

Ok, so it's not like a hard and fast rule, but I'm pretty sure you read Goodnight Moon to each candidate until they doze off into a peaceful slumber, and the tallest guy left standing wins? Am I even spelling it right? Caucaus? Cowcas? Couscous? I know it comes from the latin root cauc, which means to wildly ignite into flames, so that probably plays into the process somehow. I mean I'm really screwed here.

Do you think that if I just casually mention this in conversation that shit's gonna go over well? In this political climate? I guarantee you Peter's just gonna death stare me for a few minutes before launching into a rant about how I'm everything that's wrong with American democracy (my Danish friend blames the McRib, which seems at least partially accurate). As if that asshat knew any better before he took his freshman elections seminar.

This whole caucus thing is keeping me up at night. I toss and turn in a cold sweat, images of ballots, empty gymnasiums, and John Kasich flooding my haunted mind.

Definitions construct our reality, and as I struggle to construct my own, I can feel my sanity slipping away. Then again, the day I go out of my way to find out how they do things in Iowa will be a cold day in Hell. So, whatever.

WUnderground

WUnderground is WashU's premier [only] satirical newspaper and should be taken about as seriously as syllabus week.

However, the news reported by this paper is completely fictitious, at least to our knowledge. Any resemblance to persons living, ailing or dead is entirely intentional.

Chiefs of Staff

Carter Paterson
El Presidente

Mikki Janower
Editor-in-Chief

Max Lichtenstein
Editor-in-Chief

Staff

Henry Wineburgh
Buried Treasurer

Jess King¹

Adam Kaufman

Rahul Oza

Antisocial Social Chair

Max Woods
Pledge Daddy

Arjun Puri
Chair Jordan

Rohit Kumar
Musical Chairs

Jack Killeen
Digimon Chair

Maddie Lee
Socialism Chair

Ike Butler
Finding Things Chair

Zach Moskow

Unpaid Interns

Zoe Cooke

Alex Levy

Rahul Oza

Jack Winkelman

If you would like to write, edit, fund our money-laundering scheme, etc. then email us at:

wunderground@su.wustl.edu

¹Layout Wizard

ISSN # 1938-0089

wunderground.wustl.edu

ARTS & CULTURE

You're from the year 1450.
Can you explain Big Dick Energy to the Pope?

Point

By: Matthew Morris

junior living on Greenway

"Ugh, with the Overpass construction, it'll take me forever to get to campus :/"

Counterpoint

By: Frodo Baggins

traveled 1400 miles from the Shire through The Southfarthing, Crossed the river Brandywine, braved Crickhollow and the Old Forest, traveled through the Barrow-Downs to Bree, down the Great River Anduin, into Mordor and ascended Mt. Doom to destroy the one ring

"Alright first of all-"

WUnderhacks: How to Loft Your Bed

Trying to adjust the height of your mattress is a common struggle during move-in weekend; whether you're raising it to create a convenient storage space, or lowering it so you can sleep without performing intoxicated high jumps like you're at a track meet for degenerates, it can be a frustrating and confusing process unless you know what you're doing. Luckily, WUnderground is here with a handy guide to help you save time:

Yes, it's really that easy!

1. Remove your mattress
2. Turn your bed frame on its side
3. Whisper sweet nothings into your bed frame
4. Ask it nicely to change itself for you
5. The bed frame is an inanimate object, and will not comply
6. Dislodge the metal chassis from its peg
7. "Hook" the chassis onto the peg of desired height
8. Wait, shit, the other side isn't lining up correctly
9. Damnit
10. Jiggle it around. Seems stuck
11. Fumble around for ten minutes, to no avail
12. Frustrated, take a walk to clear your head
13. Aimlessly meandering, find yourself on Delmar Blvd.
14. Something seems to be calling out to you
15. Wander into the Church of Scientology, drawn like a moth to a flame
16. Take their Free Personality Test™!
17. Realize the Church of Scientology understands you in a way others don't
18. Join the Church, and begin attending their weekly gatherings
19. Drop out of WashU; the Church is all you need.
20. Years pass. Having risen within the Church's ranks at an astonishing pace, you're now in Tom Cruise's inner circle.
21. There's an attempt on Tom's life! But you acted swiftly, recognizing the red dot on his chest and tackling him just in time.
22. Tom Cruise is eternally grateful, and asks if there's anything he can ever do to repay you
23. Ask Tom Cruise to help you loft your bed
24. With the task finally completed, return to your old life. You reign victorious

Top 10...

Dorm Essentials

It's move-in sn, and you know what that means: time to stock up on these classic dorm-room necessities! Which of these have you checked off your shopping list?

- 11. Three gold lyrae, to guarantee safe passage across the quad
- 10. An alphabetical list of places your father has fished, in case anyone asks
- 9. An array of rare and aggressive arachnids for the underground spider-fighting ring
- 8. A fake ID saying you're 8 so you can capitalize off those kids' discounts at restaurants
- 7. A positive attitude !!!
- 6. A negative attitude, just in case
- 5. Something to remind you of home, like the $200 eighth of oregano your cousin told you was weed
- 4. A few frogs- not too many, but just enough to get the job done
- 3. A poster of an obscure artist, like Mac Demarco or the Beatles
- 2. A condom, for you to give to your roommate
- 1. A casual acquaintance from high school that you can rely on heavily for your entire social life for the first few weeks before he finds actual friends and leaves you high and dry

What Do You Think?

Andrew Martin has been appointed 15th Chancellor of Washington University. What do you think?

Holden Thorp
Provost of Washington University

Janyce Snyderman
Adjunct Professor

Michael Glack
Preemptively bought 88 "Brendan Fraser is the chancellor of my school" tee shirts

Mark Wrighton
Inventor of the Glowstick

George Washington
White Dude

"Dude pulls, but we gotta see whether he can handle the pledging process."

"Wait, what's going to happen to all my Wrighton bucks? I need to eat."

"Aw man, what am I gonna do with all of these?!"

"Error 6.66: Chancellor.exe is not responding."

"It's truly inspiring to see WashU throw out the rule book and appoint a white man as chancellor."