

WUUnderground

BY DISLOYAL JEWS, FOR DISLOYAL JEWS

AUGUST 30, 2019

VOLUME 16, ISSUE 1

PRICE: $54,250, NOT INCLUDING ROOM & BOARD

BURIED WUNDERGROUND

Under Cover of Dopeness: Why The Strokes are the Next Rolling Stones According to Me, that Cis Guy in KWUR

Page 3.14159

Polling Numbers Indicate Voters Unilaterally Reject Hopeful Optimism

Page

Populism 2019: Andrew Yang Promises to Give Every American 4 Minutes of Speaking Time at September Debate

Page

15 Activities Fair Clubs That Will Never Leave Your Inbox

Page 21 credits

Unacceptable: TKE Pledges Keep Trying to ((Assert their Humanity)) Fuck the House Roomba Vacuum

Page Find it yourself, loser

New Study Finds Correlation between Correlation, Causation

page 69 ;))))

How To Enjoy Welcome Week Well Into Your 30s

Page 2023

Struggling Democratic Candidates Merge into One Megazord Candidate, Still Polling at <1%

In an attempt to qualify for the third democratic debate, set to air on September 12th on ABC, ten struggling democratic candidates have combined forces by merging into one super-candidate, an amorphous blob reportedly weighing 1,500 pounds.

The super-candidate, which formerly inhabited the individual bodies of Kirsten Gillibrand, Tom Steyer, Steve Bullock, Marianne Williamson, Michael Bennet, Bill de Blasio, John Delaney, Seth Moulton, Tim Ryan, and Joe Sestak, will heretofore be known as Kirstockianne de Baloney-stak.

“EEEEKKZZKKGGG,” said Baloney-stak, formally announcing its rejuvenated candidacy in front of a cowering crowd of dozens.

Baloney-stak has the strength of 10 men, the speed of 6 men, and the ability to shoot laser beams from its eyes.

Some critics have called Baloney-stak a freak of nature, a Frankenstein’s monster, and a repudiation of all that is good and holy in the world.

“OH GOD, MY EYES!!!”

remarked Mayor Pete Buttigieg, when approached for comment.

Supporters, meanwhile, have lauded the gruesome metamorphosis as a welcome display of compromise in an increasingly divided country. Baloney-stak simultaneously supports universal health-care and thinks it is bogus, a position which is projected to earn voter support in Rust Belt states like Michigan and Pennsylvania.

In addition, since Baloney-stak is from New York, Colorado, Montana, Maryland, Massachusetts, Ohio, Pennsylvania, California, and Texas all at the same time, in addition to being both male and female, supporters argue that it can appeal to voters of all demographics — except for non-white voters, of course.

Editor’s Note: As of Wednesday, August 28th, Kirstockianne de Baloney-stak was still polling at <1%, and has thus been disqualified from attending the third democratic debate.

St. Louis MLS Team Somehow Relegated to DIII

Heartbreak has already befallen St. Louis’s newly-awarded Major League Soccer team before their first season has even begun. The team, which has yet to be named, has somehow already been relegated to Division III of the NCAA. The announcement has raised concerns and confusion, considering the MLS operates outside of the collegiate sports system.

“This is a bit of a rocky start us,” admitted Enterprise owner Carolyn Kindle Betz, who helped broker the deal. “We were especially taken aback because the MLS doesn’t use a system of promotion and relegation, but I guess we have a lot to learn about the beautiful game.” Despite the daunting news, the team’s social media output has shown nothing but optimism, encouraging new fans to attend a “tail-gate,” although it is unclear what this entails. The young team has even begun a merch rollout, selling branded gun holsters, actual participation trophies, and “Let’s Go Blues!” shirts. St. Louis will play their debut home game against Trinity College at historic Tower Grove Park, with a capacity of up to 850 fans.

MLS President Don Gaber confided in WUUnderground Staff that they were already in talks with the franchise to relocate to Los Angeles.

Inspiring: This Social Justice Warrior Could Save Us All

ST. LOUIS, MO—Washington University Student and proud Chaco wearer Harley Jensen might be the hero this crumbling planet needs.

“Harley works tirelessly to redeem our vice-ridden society,” says a source close to the subject. “From retweeting Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez to posting snapshots of the Amazon’s burnt husk, she fights to bring justice to the entire human community.”

Jensen, who studies Finance with a pending Anthropology minor, has indeed manned the front line of the crusade for moral integrity. This week alone, the fearless young warrior has donated $35 to Planned Parenthood fundraisers on Facebook, posted two I.C.E warnings to her Instagram story, and shared an Amazon Prime link to reusable straws with those on her Close Friends list. When pressed, Jensen, who spent the summer after high school teaching volleyball to third-world invalids, added that she “tries to limit her meat intake” and “feel[s] a deep connectedness” with the writings of Chimamanda Ngozi Adichie.

“The WashU community is at risk of becoming complacent in its privilege,” she observes, “But we cannot be bystanders during such a turbulent time; we need to take radical action towards meaningful and lasting change. That’s why I tweeted about Palantir that one time. That’s why I watched the debates. And that’s why I follow The Wing on Instagram. Someday, I want my grandchildren to know that I did everything I could to end injustice.”

In an epoch of moral embattlement, Jensen spearheads the youth movement towards a safer and brighter future. At press time, she was seen in a Google Interns 2019 snapback explaining the Endangered Species Act to a group of First Years in the DUC Fun Room. Jensen has since accepted a post-grad position at Shell, where she hopes to wear more Reformation.

TOP 10...

Top 10 Freshman Seminars

11. Supermicroecon: Introduction to Teeny-Tiny Moneys
10. Can Candy Crush be Racially Charged?: Dissecting your Grandparents’ Facebook Feeds
9. This Isn’t Even a Real Class: Introduction to Conspiracy Theories
8. Mostly Just Keyboard Shortcuts: Computer Science for Humanities Majors
7. Mostly Just Cheating: Principles of Successful Computer Science Students
6. From Vapid 11 Year Old to Tragic Child Star: TikTok and the American Dream
5. Meat, Ethics, and The Environment: Intro to Being The Worst Kind of Vegan
4. Pop Culture Reference in Course Title: I Can’t Believe You Fell for Taking This
3. I Took a Pill in Chichén Itza: How Mike Posner Overthrew the Mayan Empire
2. Buzzwords: An Analysis of Intersectional Approaches to the Authoritarian Ethos in the Technocratic State: How to Utilize Two Colons and Still Sound Intellectually Competent
1. How to Profit Off of Your Mental Illness (Sam Fox requirement)