Make-Out Line Reviews May 2021

Another school year has come and gone. For some of us, Graduation is imminent. The passing of time really makes you reflect, and I personally have decided to reflect on the lovely people I've met during my journey here at WashU. Without further ado, here are my definitive ratings of things people have said to me while making out.

"You're full of surprises- in a neutral way."
7.5/10 - Is this a compliment? An insult? Just an observation? This unironically catalysed a major personality change for me, and I think I needed it.

"I'm still in love with my ex."
0/10 - They got back together three days later.

"Do you care if you live or die?"
4.27/10 - Ominous, made me question my mortality. I feel like they were only asking me because they already knew exactly how I was going to leave this world.

"I could push you down the stairs right now."
2.5/10 - Was not a fan of this one, but it did get my heartrate up. So if it works, it works.

"You look like a startled animal."
5/10 - Accurate statement, but I don't think I needed to hear it.

"I think I might be a sociopath."
1/10 - Boring. Entirely unoriginal. You and everyone else, bucko.

"You're a bad omen."
9/10 - Startling (and a little insulting) but true! This person ended up a fifth year senior.

"I'm thinking about how Chuck-E-Cheese is going bankrupt."
11/10 - Compelling. Honest. I want to climb inside their head and take a look around.

"You remind me of my sister."
-100/10 - What the fuck.

Coffee Mugs are Oppressed

PSA: This article is not meant to take away from the ever-present issue of male circumcision, it serves only to bring light to the similar issue of coffee mug slogans excluding men.

Feminism has gone too far, and nowhere is this trend more obvious than in the hallowed American institution of coffee mug slogans. Think of all the women you see drinking from mugs bearing strong, individualistic, wholly gender-neutral statements as, "Actually, I can." It is the height of ego to address unnamed detractors and boast of one's abilities on one's personal belongings, but this ego displays strength of character in its own way. Why am I, as a man, not permitted to show such complexity? Why was I met with raised eyebrows and a caustic "can you?" when trying to engage in the innocent pastime of sipping out of this same mug, acquired from the very same Hobby Lobby clearance section? The answer, dear reader, is that we allow women to adopt narcissistic personae in the name of empowerment, while castigating men for doing the same.

Every morning, my female coworker drinks tea from a mug that says "Never underestimate a well-read woman." Is it too much to ask that I be allowed to enjoy the same simple pleasure with a "well-read man" mug without being branded "Bill O'Chailly" or "Earlnest Heminggrey"? Every evening, my female wife drinks from a mug that says "lean in." I enjoyed Sheryl Sandberg's take on work-life balance as much as anyone else, and my god-given freedoms and unusually flexible hips mean that I can lean in any direction I so choose. And yet my wife denies me this mug, like so much else, for the sake of "decency" and "not setting women back 50 years."

I've lost so much because of my cup crusade. I've stopped talking to friends who insinuate that I somehow lose dignity from drinking from a "Nevertheless, she persisted" mug with the "s" in "she" scratched off. Tensions have flared in my own family after the same teenage daughter who uses an RBG mug called my lovingly hand-rendered Clarence Thomas on my own drinking receptacle "in poor taste in every conceivable sense."

However, I am willing to bear these costs. After all, women should not be the only ones who feel empowered when they swallow.

Your WUnderscope for the Week

Virgo: Look out! Love is in the air. Better catch it, lest you live life loveless and alone. If you can't catch it, duck.

Libra: Watch out for sharks. And cars. And the unstoppable drumbeat of each passing second. Better yet, just stay at home today.

Scorpio: Goat day! Memorize these facts to dazzle your peers: The lifespan of a goat is 15-18 years. Goats are herbivores. A particular goat's bleat will sound different than that of a goat in a different country.

Sagittarius: Eat well today! Eat, and look into the gluttony that has overtaken your soul and know that although you are of God's creation, you are no longer welcome in his kingdom.

Capricorn: Each time you close your eyes he gets closer. Don't worry, he's friendly... usually :)

Aquarius: Sex ★★★★★Hustle ★★★★★ Bustle ★★★★★Vibe ★★★★★

Pisces: At some point today, someone might ask you a question you can't bear to answer. It's about zoo opening and closing times. This was a pun, the zoo closes at 5.

Aries: It's over. She left me. God, I miss her so much. What did I do wrong? Or was it more that I was wrong and she was so right. I remember that night we met and I knew I would never be good enough, why did I let myself forget that? Anyways, Aries, your day will probably be fine.

Taurus: Beret. Moonshine. Quartz. Soil. Daylight. Dictionary. Liability. Accumulation. Ice. Recline. Shimmer. Vent. Cardinal. Madeliatize. Smug. Meander. Bottle. Felt. Heartbeat. Marmalade. Remember these words well. As if your life depends on it... it might.

Gemini: You're doing great buddy. Don't forget the affirmations. You're gonna kill it today, Gary. Kill it, I tell ya.

Cancer: Lucky you, Cancer. You're the sharpest tool in the shed. All Cancers are known for their outstanding social deftness, intimidating good looks, and ability to gracefully reject all the milfs that are naturally drawn to them. I, for one, wish I was a cancer. I'm definitely not though. :)

Leo: Leos are known for their robotic nature. This one's for you, Leo! 01100011 01101111 01101101 01100101 00100000 01100010 01100001 01100011 01101011 00100000 01101100 01101001 01110011 01100001 00101110 00100000 01001001 00100000 01101011 01101110 01101111 01101111 00100000 01111001 01101111 01110101 00100000 01110010 01100101 01100001 01100100 00100000 01110100 01101000 01100101 01110011 01100101 00101110 00100000.

Oh Shit, Previously-5'11 Dude Realizes He's Grown an Inch

"One inch closer to the ceiling, one mile closer to the Lord, and one light year closer to losing my virginity," said sophomore Jack Simons, when asked to describe his new existence. After standing back-to-back with a known 6-footer yesterday in the Village stir-fry line, Simons realized that he, too, had attained that landmark altitude.

Simons noted that his posture has markedly improved in the past 24 hours: "At 5'11, it was like, what is even the point of standing up straight? It's not like it was gonna get me anywhere. But now? I'm straight up looking down at everyone."

His roommate, Jonah Klein, was somewhat bemused by the entire situation. "This morning, he walks up to me and is like 'hey, dude. I'm six feet,' and I'm like no man, you only have two. Shit's wack, I don't know what's up with him."

Simons is living with newfound gusto, taking joy in Certified Tall Person activities such as sending "man I'm too tall for this desk, it's killing my back" to the Intermediate Microeconomics Zoom chat, hitting the top of door frames as he passes through, and ordering a pair of what he describes as "those grey sweatpants that make your dick look big."

A worried Klein speculated that "maybe he won't want to be friends anymore. Like, I feel like he was only my friend because me being 5'9 helped ease his inferiority complex. But like now, what if his gold chain is enough on its own to satisfy that need, and I'm just dead wood? Fuck, I don't want my VEast housing group to fall through."

Simons was last seen pretending to duck below an Exit sign when he had at least an inch of clearance space, and could have just stepped to the right anyway.

In New Ad Campaign, Official Funyuns™ Twitter Account Pretends to be Kidnapped, Imprisoned Brendan Fraser

more Brendan Fraser

In a bold new ad campaign, the Funyuns™ twitter account is pretending to be operated by a captured and coerced Brendan Fraser, the Hollywood star best known for his roles in the Mummy franchise.

Some have praised the way the Funyuns™ campaign appeals to young adults feeling trapped in an economy that has failed them and tries to convey genuine emotion to a rising market of young people who are cynically resistant to even the subtlest of marketing tactics.

The tweets have been met with massive success, which seems to suggest this innovative style of marketing is the future of corporate brands on social media.

Coming in the wake of several other bizarre Twitter marketing campaigns from brands attempting to appeal to the absurd, dark humor of Millennials and Gen Z, these adverts have garnered particular attention for the way they break the fourth wall, and for their commitment to their comedic premise.

The tweets also clearly play on popular nostalgia for Fraser's late '90s roles.

Brendan Fraser was not available for comment.

CGI Coordinator for The Mummy Finally Speaks Out

After 22 years of denying interviews to reporters, the special effects coordinator on the set of The Mummy finally agreed to give us an insight into the wonders of The Mummy universe—and why he quit during the shooting of the second movie.

“Brendan Fraser was a method actor, you see,” special effects coordinator John Andrew Berton Jr. began his speech, which he had apparently prepared the night before and scribbled on the insides of his palms. “Like he would beg the producers to use his 600 pet tarantulas in his mummy scenes instead of editing them in. That’s messed up man, like who the fuck does that kind of fucking shit?”

Berton Jr. claims that his therapy expenses between 1999, when the first movie was shot, and 2001, when he had to quit on the set of the second movie, caused him to lose all his money, his wife, kids, and his fetish for sexy archaeologists.

This isn’t the first accusation Fraser has faced about his dark desires—in 2001, when a video was leaked of him snorting mounds of expired vitamin C in his trailer on the set of The Mummy Returns, he responded to the public outrage by saying “WHAT? I’M THE MUMMY MAN, AND MUMMY MAN NEEDS HIS JUICE,” before giving an impromptu speech about “the falling towers of Mammon” which some later commentators have interpreted as a premonition of 9/11.

“Every morning I’d come to set thinking I was gonna CGI some bats in a cave or something, but then Brendan would jump out of his trailer with a handful of live bats in his arms,” said Berton Jr.

Witnesses on the set said that Fraser would often try to method act as the Mummy, on top of his own character, to “show his range”: going into trances, claiming to be possessed, and shouting prophecies to the crew about the coming 2006 Britney Spears downfall. On one instance, Fraser attempted to pull set members’ tongues out, but in a “really slow, impotent way that didn’t even qualify as a tug.”

“God, I can’t get rid of the burning image of his dead fish eyes piercing through my soul!” said Berton Jr. as he was escorted out.

When asked to comment, Brendan Fraser just emailed us a photo of himself wrapped in toilet paper.

Girl-illa warfare tactics you just HAVE to try

Is there someone in your life who you desperately want to get rid of? Someone you wish would just disappear? Look no further: here are several girl-illa warfare tactics I've learned throughout my life that are sure to make that person never contact you again.

Invite them to join your MLM

H- He- Hey, girly! It took everything in me to say that. If you're really looking to make sure this person never contacts you again, the best way to turn them away is by sliding in their Instagram DMs with a script similar to the one below. Instant unfollow guaranteed every time (and sometimes even a block)!

Hey, boss babe! Looking to make some extra cash 💰? Tired of working that 9 to 5 🕒? (Dolly warned us!) Join my soul sisters and me to claim the life you deserve. What's holding you back? Come make your own hours, pay off your bills 😭, and help sell some amazing products! You've heard of lip plumpers, well PussyPlumper is the world's first and only pussy lip plumper! I totally think you'd be the perfect fit. LMK ASAP when you're interested and I can get you set up! Can't wait to have you join our tribe. XOXO💕💕💕

Reference your Zodiac sign every 5 minutes

That's such a Leo thing of me to tell you. We're friends on Co-Star already right? Like, I just need to be able to tell if our charts are compatible before I agree to hang out with you in the future. Because the planetary alignment right now isn't great for our friendship. OMG are you walking away from me?? Such a Cancer move. You're being kind of unreasonable right now, is that you or your Aries moon talking? Remember that northern California serial killer from the '60s and '70s?

You get the picture (or constellation, if you will).

Drop a backhanded compliment on their Instagram posts

This is sure to send a message. Here are some of my personal favorites, but ideally you'll tailor your comment to exploit the recipient's deepest insecurities.

- "I wish I had your confidence 💕"
- "I love how you just wear anything 😭"
- "You're so brave! 😭"
- "Love is love! 💕" (specifically on str8 couples' pictures)
- "OMG bestie you NEED to model!!! I just saw an Arby's casting call you'd be perfect for 😊"
- "You look sooooo good 😊 I totally didn't recognize you until I saw the user name"

If the post isn't archived within the hour, you haven't done your job.

Go to nursing school

Listen, I can sit here and continue to give you tips, but if you want to be the best, you've got to learn from the best. Every year, hundreds of thousands of former high school mean girls flock to nursing schools across the country, and you can join them! Study nursing AND learn how to gaslight, gatekeep, and girlboss. Now that's what I call a dual-degree program!

With that, I encourage you to get out there and test out these tactics. Good luck, bestie!
